Guest Critics:

Patrick Hazari graduated from the College of Architecture and Design in 2005. Upon graduation, he took his talents to New York, where he has earned the respect and admiration of a host of clients. Hazari is director of design and construction for Friends of the High Line, a nonprofit conservancy that handles operations of the High Line, the award-winning 1.45-mile linear park built on a former elevated railroad track. Prior to his work with Friends of the High Line, Hazari was a designer for the renowned architectural firm Weiss/Manfredi. He has served as a guest lecturer and critic at many prominent schools of design. Hazari was a member of the College of Architecture and Design's Board of Advisors, a member of the Dean's Advocacy Board and was the featured speaker at the May 2017 commencement.

Rebekah Radtke is an Assistant Professor in the College of Design School of Interiors at the University of Kentucky. She earned a Master of Architecture at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago and received a Bachelor of Fine Arts in Interiors Design at the University of Kentucky. Her research investigates how interior design enables social change by applying boundary-spanning pedagogical approaches rather than discipline-specific processes. Since 2011 her transdisciplinary multi-scalar projects produced better living and learning environments and healthy communities in national and international venues. Her collaborative work, all funded by national entities, include preservation projects in rural China, design-build projects in Brazil, community-activated art interventions in Appalachia, and education-based design initiatives in Lexington, KY.

Vibhavari Jani, is an Associate Professor in Interior Architecture and Product Design at Kansas State University. 2013 Rotary Peace Fellow Vibhavari Jani was trained as an architect, interior designer, painter, singer, and as a dancer and holds graduate degree in Interior architecture and bachelor's degree in Architecture. In more than 22 years of practice in the United States, she has served the architecture and interior design industry in executive and administrative capacity and designed and managed large ($100 million) projects for major corporations, health care, education, government and hospitality clients.

Her research efforts, conference presentations and publications have addressed a range of issues including the contribution of Non-Western cultures in the field of architecture and design, influence of collaborative efforts in architecture and interior design education, sustainability and green design, and the influence of new technology and how it is impacting the interior design curricula. Her book "Diversity in Design: Perspectives from the Non-Western World," published by Fairchild Publication received the Best Book Award from Interior Design Educators Council (IDEC) in 2012. Her paintings, poetry, essays and articles have been published in India, the UK and the USA. Her many creative publications include "Creation" the book of her abstract paintings based on the Vedanta Philosophy of India, "Baal Vikas Yatra" (Baby's Growth Book) and her book of Poetry "Sumbandh Naam Nu Ek Phool." Professor Jani was awarded Kansas Campus Compact Engaged Faculty Fellowship and the Big 12 Faculty Fellowship in 2012. She is also a Tiford Fellow.
